With his health improving and an octagon return now in sight, UFC heavyweight champion Brock Lesnar is the focus of two episodes of Spike TV's "UFC Unleashed" tonight.

Spike TV officials today told MMAjunkie.com (www.mmajunkie.com) they arranged the episodes to welcome the champ back to the cage.

The episodes feature Lesnar vs. Randy Couture (7 p.m. ET/PT) and Lesnar vs. Frank Mir II (8 p.m. ET/PT).

"UFC Unleashed" is the UFC and Spike TV's long-running archived-fights show. Top fights from past UFC events are featured in each episode, which run throughout the week on the cable station.

Lesnar vs. Couture took place at UFC 91 in November 2008 and gave Lesnar his first shot at a title. Lesnar vs. Mir II took place in July 2009 at UFC 100 (Lesnar's most recent appearance) and allowed him a chance to avenge a February 2008 loss to Mir.

Lesnar this week joined ESPN's "SportsCenter" and then hosted a media conference call (with UFC president Dana White) to discuss his recovery from mononucleosis and then complications from diverticulosis. The ailments pulled Lesnar from a planned November UFC 106 headlining bout with Shane Carwin and has been the source of much speculation about the former WWE star.

However, now healing, Lesnar planned to return to training on Thursday, and he's expected to meet the winner of a UFC 111 fight between Mir and Carwin (for the vacant title). As MMAjunkie.com reported on Wednesday, the title-unification bout could come at UFC 114 in May.

In addition to the "UFC Unleashed" episodes, Spike TV also tonight airs a new episode of "Best of PRIDE," a similar highlights show that uses footage from the now-defunct PRIDE Fighting Championships. Featured matchups include Mirko "Cro Cop" Filipovic, Don Frye, Jens Pulver, Hayato Sakurai, Wanderlei Silva and others, according to the Spike TV schedule.
